

STATE FARM GETS FIRST PRISONERS

INDIANAPOLIS AND MARTINSVILLE ARE FIRST CITIES TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE STATE'S NEW PENAL INSTITUTION—FIVE PRISONERS ARRIVE IN AUTOMOBILES.

MANY EXPECTED THIS WEEK

Five prisoners were received at the State Farm at Putnamville on Monday, the first day the state's new penal institution was open to receive prisoners. Indianapolis and Martinsville were the first towns in the state to send prisoners and in each instance, the officers took the prisoners to the farm in automobiles.

Three prisoners were sent from Indianapolis and two from Martinsville. The men were received Monday at the farm and their crimes and terms are told in newspapers published respectively in Indianapolis and Martinsville as follows:

Three Sent to Penal Farm.

Three men, probably the first in the state to be sent to the State Penal Farm, which is to be opened for prisoners tomorrow, were sentenced by Judge Collins of Criminal Court yesterday. They were Jesse Hunt, colored, sentenced for six months for assault and battery on his former wife; William Dodson of Salt Lake City, Utah, for nine months for petit larceny, and Fred Bender, for nine months for petit larceny. In addition to the "days," Hunt was fined $50. Dodson and Bender $100 each. The men will be taken to the farm as soon as the commitments can be made out for them, probably tomorrow or Tuesday—Indianapolis Sunday Star.

Two to Penal Farm. Frank Hockman was before Mayor Anderson this morning and was fined $25 and costs because of intoxication. He was also given a sentence of thirty days, and as he did not pay or stay, he was ordered committed to the penal farm at Greencastle for sixty-five days.

In circuit court this morning, after being fully advised in the matter, the court found William Johnson guilty of petit larceny. He was fined one dollar and costs and sentenced to the Indiana penal farm for ninety days.—Martinsville Reporter.

The exact methods to be adopted in handling the prisoners who are sent to the State Farm have not been fully determined as yet by the Superintendent, C. E. Talkington. As the institution is a new one for the state the officers necessarily will have to formulate their plans for handling the prisoners as they gain experience in managing the farm. Tentative plans have been formulated which will be subject to change as the officers dictate.

After a few months the officials will be able to determine upon a set of plans and probably will adopt regular rules regarding the management of the men sent there.

All prisoners received at the farm are first required to discard the clothing worn to the farm and are supplied with work clothes. They, also, are required to undergo a medical examination, which is in charge of Dr. Jerome King, medical examiner for the farm.

Each prisoner as he is received gives a record of himself which is kept on file by the farm officials. The prisoners are numbered and during their term on the farm they are known by their number and not their name.

It is believed by the farm officials that most of the prisoners will be brought to the farm from surrounding counties in automobiles. The five prisoners who arrived Monday were all taken to the farm in automobiles. From more distant points in the state the prisoners probably will be brought by train, coming to Greencastle by rail and then being taken to the farm in machines or reaching the farm by way of the Monon, arriving either on the morning or afternoon trains.

Today, the second day since the farm was opened to prisoners, was a busy one. Three prisoners were received from Washington on the early morning train and by 2 o'clock three more from Bloomington and one from Crawfordsville had been registered. The three from Bloomington arrived here on the noon train and were taken to the farm in an automobile. Among the three from Bloomington was "Col" Edward Mobley, who formerly worked at the barber trade in this town. Mobley worked here about nine years ago.

Other prisoners were expected to arrive during the day and the officers expect a steady increase of prisoners from this time on. At present the farm buildings will accommodate 200 prisoners. Ralph Howard, assistant superintendent, who has had experience in handling prisoners in both the Boys' School at Plainfield and in the Michigan City Penitentiary, will have the direct supervision of the prisoners as they arrive.

Several of the men already received at the farm have been sent for terms of approximately one year. As men are received and the organization perfected, prisoners who have made good records will probably be placed in charge of squads of prisoners to supervise their work. Much work will be found to be done on the 1,600 acres of land in the farm and the officers will strive to keep all men occupied during their terms of imprisonment.

The organization of the State Farm officials is as follows:

Board of Trustees.
G. A. H. Shideler, Marion, president.
Geo. E. Seidel, Richmond, vice president.
Wm. C. Ball, Terre Haute, secretary.
James L. Randel, Greencastle, treasurer.
Superintendent—C. E. Talkington.
Assistant Superintendent—Ralph Howard.
Chief Clerk—Charley Wood.
Store Keeper—Richard Hazelett.
Stable Man—Buck Hepler.
Night Guard—William Glidewell.
Instructors (Guards)—W. J. Hood and Liburn Hepler.

OVER 200 PEOPLE HERE MONDAY TO PAY TAXES

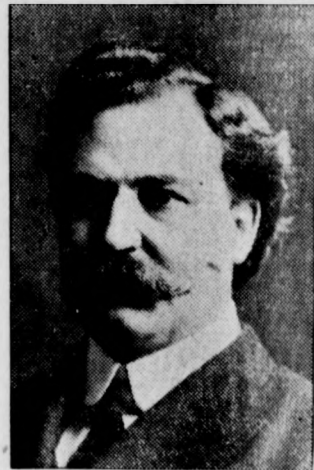

The time for spring tax paying is now at hand and many people of the county are calling at the office of County Treasurer H. H. Runyan to settle for the spring installment. Over 200 people paid taxes Monday, beside a large number who mailed their payments to the county official. Two weeks and five days remain for all the taxes to be paid, for the spring installment is due the first Monday in May.

The people who have called and paid their taxes to the treasurer have avoided the big rush, which will come the last week before the taxes are due. Many wait until the last few days before taxes go delinquent and as a result are forced to stand in line a long time before their money is accepted. Much less difficulty would be experienced, by both the taxpayer and the treasurer, if people would attend to this business matter at the earliest possible time instead of waiting until the last day or two of taxpaying.

Each delivery of mail brings to the office many letters containing checks or money orders for taxes on Putnam county land. The county officer and his deputy, Ross Runyan, will be very busily engaged for several weeks caring for the payments and returning receipts for the money.

The first ward baseball team won from the third ward team on the latter's grounds Monday afternoon. The score was 12 to 9. The game was called in the third inning, but the two aggregations will get together for a second game in a few days.

JACKSON BOYD, AUTHOR, OF A POETIC DRAMA.

"The Unveiling" is the title of a poetic drama, by Jackson Boyd of this town, which is among the "Publications for the Spring of 1915," as announced by the G. P. Putnam's Sons Publishing company of New York.

In announcing the publication of the new book, the publishers make the following comment:

The Unveiling.
A Poetic Drama
(By Jackson Boyd.)

That life is a dream has been a fiction of poets since the beginning; that a dream can express life is the plot of this drama. The action of the drama consists in the unfolding of the lives of its characters under the patronage of the gods Ormazd and Ahriman. Nature is unveiled, life is revealed, and reality made to stand out above appearances; yet it is all a dream. A prominent dramatic critic has expressed "unbounded admiration of the great conception, and the perfection of the philosophy" embodied in the play. Mr. Boyd states that he is just now completing the work of reading proof on his work and that is probably will be several weeks before the edition is ready for distribution. The volume will consist about 300 pages.

RUSSIAN LAD LECTURES TO THE H. S. STUDENTS

"America is the best nation on the face of the globe," was an opinion expressed by Louis Miller, a young Russian who is traveling this country earning money to defray his expenses through an eastern university, when lecturing to the students of the Greencastle high school this morning. Miller compared the existing conditions of Russia with those of the United States and his lecture was very interesting. A collection was taken among the students and presented to the young man.

Miller has been in this country only 18 months and during that time he has been able to learn enough of our language to speak fairly good English. His description of the government conditions in Russia was excellent and he interested his hearers. He showed the disadvantages the boys and girls of Russia, who are desirous of getting an education. He stated that there was little chance for children to receive an education in that country, for practically all the people of that country are poor and are forced to work. The conditions brought about by the European war were also described in a very interesting manner. Miller's father and mother were recently killed in Russia during a battle between the German and Russian armies. His brother is a surgeon in the Russian army. His rendition of two Russian folk songs were received with much applause and several times he was encored and forced to sing his songs again.

Miller went to Crawfordsville this afternoon where he will lecture before the students of that school Wednesday morning.

Fred V. Thomas, through his attorney, W. M. Sutherland, has filed suit in the Putnam Circuit Court against John W. Iddings of Floyd township asking $350 judgment and the sale of property given as security on two promissory notes issued last November. Mr. Thomas alleges that Mr. Iddings executed to him two promissory notes, one of $60 and the other for $68.21 and that both are due and the defendant has refused to pay them.

County Auditor C. L. Airhart was in Danville, Ind., Monday afternoon on business.

FOUR TO GO TO PRISON ALONE

JUDGE ANDERSON OF THE FEDERAL COURT GRANTS CONVICTED MEN WHO WITHDREW APPEAL PRIVILEGE TO GO TO HOMES IN TERRE HAUTE UN-ATTENDED—WILL DELIVER THEMSELVES TO FEDERAL PRISON AUTHORITIES.

OTHERS ARE SEEKING BOND

COURSES OPEN TO ACCUSED.

Three courses are now open to the accused in the election conspiracy case:

They may supply bonds amounting to $10,000 for each year of their sentence and covering the payment of fine and costs to stay the execution of sentence pending trial.

They may abide by the decision of the court here and accept the punishment as final without taking an appeal, or they may begin the serving of sentences immediately and take an appeal without giving bond.

If an appeal is taken and the case affirmed, the defendants have one more chance by seeking a writ of certiorari from the Supreme Court of the United States, asking that tribunal to review it. If that writ is refused, the last step would have been taken and the accused would have to serve their sentences.

The length of time for the case to go through the United States Circuit Court of Appeals is estimated from nine months to one year.

The total amount of bonds necessary to release all of those sentenced to serve in Leavenworth is $410,065, not counting the surety to cover the payment of costs and the fines.

FOUR ESCAPE JUDGMENT.

Four conspirators escaped judgment because they are important witnesses in the conspiracy case against Roy L. Shattuck and four other Republicans who were candidates at the last election. These conspirators were Jack Nugent, former assistant chief of police; Frankie Hess, tenderloin ward boss; Jack Hines, another tenderloin ward boss, and John Bruns, a repeater at the last election and a relative of Hess.

The Republicans are charged with paying $1,000 to Hess for the theft of the tenderloin precincts for them. Hess says he split the payment with Nugent, who says he in turn divided the money with Donn M. Roberts. Hines and Bruns are supposed to have knowledge of the transaction. The Republicans when arraigned pleaded not guilty. The date for trial was set as May 17.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 13.—Sentence was passed by Judge Anderson of Federal Court Monday on the Terre Haute political gangsters, Mayor Donn M. Roberts, as the leader, drawing a sentence of six years in the Federal prison and a fine of $2,000. The Terre Haute mayor, along with Judge Eli H. Redman of the Vigo Circuit Court and Sheriff Dennis Shea, who were sentenced to five years and fined $1,000 each, and 104 other prisoners passed the night in the Marion County jail unable to provide bond required in staying execution of the sentences pending an appeal. They will remain there for several days, the government desiring to give them an opportunity to provide satisfactory bond before taking them to prison in Leavenworth, Kas.

The judgment of the court is summarized as follows: Prison sentences to twenty-one; jail sentences of six months and $10 fine to ten; jail senences of four months and $10 fine to twenty-four; sentence of three months and $10 fine to seventeen; jail sentence of sixty days, to thirty-two; jail sentence of one day and $100 fines to three; jail sentence of six months to one.

The ranks of the convicted men were broken in the afternoon when John Masselink, city sealer at Terre Haute and a former state representative from Vigo county; George Sovern, a saloon keeper; Arthur Gillis, an undertaker, and Joseph Straus, a political worker, signified their intention of seeking no appeal from the verdict. They went before Judge Anderson and withdrew from the writ of error, saying they were ready to begin their terms at once. They were permitted to go to their homes after they had promised to start to Leavenworth unescorted Sunday.

Sentences imposed by Judge Anderson ranged from the heavy terms and fines imposed on the public officials and political leaders to light terms in the county jail for the lesser lights. In several cases also the sentences were suspended.

Four Allowed to Go Home.

Instead of spending Monday night in jail with the other convicted men, the four who decided not to push their appeals went to their homes in Terre Haute under a promise to Judge Anderson that they would surrender themselves to the prison authorities next week and would start for Leavenworth not later than 12:30 o'clock next Sunday afternoon. Judge Anderson handed each one of the four his commitment to the prison, and accepted his word that he would surrender himself at the proper time.

Mayor Roberts, who elects to stand on the original plan of appeal and who hopes to obtain bond today or tomorrow, is said to have been incensed at the action of the four, and it is understood he urged them to stay with the others.

Roberts and other members of his political organization, including Judge Eli H. Redman of the Vigo Circuit Court; Thomas Smith, judge of the City Court; Maurice Walsh, treasurer of the Democratic county committee; the Dennis Shea, sheriff of Vigo County; spent the night in jail, and today their lawyers will renew the effort to obtain bond that would permit them to have their liberty until the United States Circuit Court of Appeals passes on the case.

SALOONS CENTERS OF POLITICAL CORRUPTION

Judge Anderson in his remarks incidental to the sentencing of the Terre Haute conspirators had something to say about saloons. He was considering the cases of several saloon keepers when he said:

"My notion is that the saloon will have to go.

"I believe the time will come when the people will rise up and smash the saloon, at least as we have it now. The evidence in this case showed that the saloons were the centers of nearly all the corruption in the election at Terre Haute."

Judge Anderson said he had noticed that the saloon keepers who appeared on the witness stand looked good physically, and seemed well and strong. "God Almighty meant for them to work with their hands," he said. "I don't approve of this saloon business at least as it is conducted in Terre Haute."

James Markum, who resides on south Bloomington street, was arraigned in Mayor Cooper's Court Monday afternoon and was fined $1 and costs for assault and battery. Markum was released and the sentence was suspended after he had received a severe lecture from the mayor. The charges were brought against him as the result of a fight he had with his brother at noon on Monday. It is said that his brother was badly beaten by James.

The Rev. E. D. Soper of the Drew Theological Seminary will begin a series of four Beemer Foundation lectures in the university this evening at 6:30 o'clock. The general subject of his series of lectures will be "The Religious Conditions in Non-Christian Lands."

DEMOCRATS PLAN BIG LOVE FEAST

SPEAKERS TO URGE MUCH ACTIVITY TO DISCOUNT WORK OF REPUBLICAN PARTY—SLOGAN TO BE, RESTORE CONFIDENCE IN WILSON ADMINISTRATION AND RALSTON.

REDFIELD TO GIVE TALK

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 10.—A Democratic love feast to be held here within the next three or four weeks and with Secretary Redfield of the department of commerce as the principal speaker, was practically decided upon at a meeting of Bernard Korbly, chairman of the Democratic state committee and a score of Democratic leaders of the state, here today. Further plans for the feast will be considered at another meeting of the state central committee, members of congress from this state and other leaders to be held here next Saturday.

Dailey to Speak.

The tenor of all the speeches, including, it was said, those by United States Senator John W. Kern and United States District Attorney Frank C. Dailey, was that the Democrats must begin the fight at once to offset the activities of the Republicans. A committee was appointed to arrange for a permanent Democratic news bureau to combat the arguments which, it was said, were being sent out by the Republicans to the effect that the Wilson policies were ruining the business of the country. L. G. Ellingham, former state secretary, who was a newspaper editor, was prominently spoken of for the chairmanship of the press bureau.

To Restore Confidence.

The slogan of the Democratic campaign it was indicated, will be to restore confidence in the Wilson administration and to show that the government under Governor Ralston is satisfactory. Secretary Redfield was chosen as the headliner of the love feast, it was said, because of his knowledge of the business situation. Chairman Korbly said the date for the meeting would depend on the movements of the cabinet member.

It was also agreed at today's conference that a series of meetings should be held immediately throughout the state. This action means that the 1916 campaign in Indiana will begin almost a year earlier than previous campaigns have ever been opened.

Told That There Was No Cure for Him.

"After suffering for over twenty years with indigestion and having some of the best doctors here tell me there was no cure for me, I think it only right to tell you for the sake of other sufferers as well as your own satisfaction that a 25 cent bottle of Chamberlain's Tablets not only relieved me but cured me within two months although I am a man of 65 years," writes Jul Grobier, Houston, Texas. CHURCH PEOPLE FAVOR THE PLAN

PASTORS REPORT THAT INFORMAL DISCUSSION OF THE PROJECT OF UNITING THE COLLEGE AVENUE AND LOCUST STREET CHURCHES INDICATES THAT THE PLAN IS BEING FAVORABLY CONSIDERED BY CONGREGATIONS.

MUCH WORK TO BE DONE

Although no congregational meeting has been held by either the College Avenue or Locust Street Methodist Episcopal Church at which meetings there will be discussions of the proposed union of the two churches, the pastors of each of the churches, this morning reported that as far as they had been able to ascertain through informal discussion of the subject with the individual members, there is little, if any, opposition to the plan.

The Rev. Bert DeWitt Beck, pastor of the Locust Street Church, on Sunday announced that the congregation of his church would meet on Thursday night to discuss the project. Since the announcement of the proposed union has been made, Dr. Beck has had opportunity to talk to many of his congregation regarding the matter.

He states that there is some little opposition, which he believes is prompted more by sentiment than anything else. He feels that this sentiment will be overcome by the belief that the welfare of the church in the community will be greatly benefited by the uniting of the churches, however.

Dr. Tillotson of the College Avenue Church has not called a meeting of his congregation but he has talked informally with many of the members. The general feeling among his congregation, according to Dr. Tillotson, is that the union of the two churches is advisable if the details of the plan can be worked out successfully.

The plan as discussed contemplates the sale of the present church properties and the building of a new edifice. If the property interests of the two congregations can be arranged to advantage, and other details can be satisfactorily arranged, his congregation, he believes, will strongly favor the move.

In case the two congregations and official boards decided to unite the two churches many months would be required to work out the details. The committees representing the two churches will meet again next Monday night to further discuss the plan.

CHINESE ARMIES MOSTLY ON PAPER

President Yuan Shi-kai Says Custom of Declaring False Numbers Prevails.

THE OFFICERS PRACTICE GRAFT

Government Pays for Large Bodies of Troops That Do Not Exist.

Pekin.—Reasons why the Chinese Army, although it numbers half a million men on paper, cannot be employed to defend the Republic against an aggression, are set forth openly in an official explanation by President Yuan Shi-kai.

He says, in effect, that, although the military expense is the largest item in the Government bills, the evil practice of declaring false numbers of troops continues, to the detriment of the Republic's defensive power.

The interesting document reads in part as follows:

"In former days the most corrupt practice existing in the army was that the actual number of troops in each yard (military camp) was never in accordance with the number paid for by the Government, and the officers appropriated the surplus. People are not at all surprised at such irregularities, as they had become common habits. The financial condition of the nation became worse, while the discipline of the army was hopelessly neglected.

"I, the President, once created and trained a modern army, and all former corruptions were wholly swept away. But after the revolution there was trouble everywhere, and chiefs of political parties and arrogant commanders became presumptuous with their military backing. In the morning they enrolled vagabonds in the streets and in the evening they claimed to have created an army.

"Although the number was less than a thousand, it was proclaimed to be more than 10,000. When the time came for disbandment of troops large sums of money were demanded from the Government. I, the President, being unwilling to see the people suffer the consequences of further rebellion, reluctantly complied with their demands. Thus order and peace were maintained. But when we think of it we are still grieved. Now, although the cancerous disease has been healed, it is impossible to say that the evil practice of declaring false numbers of troops has not continued. The largest annual expense of the Government is the military expenditure. * * * All generals and colonels in the army should take warning from the past and act carefully in the future, performing their services faithfully and maintaining their own integrity. Thus will they show their appreciation of the President's wish to reform and discipline the army."

Threats of punishment are included in the President's proclamation. Among the institutions of the Empire which have been revived by the Republican Government under Yuan Shi-kai is that of "hero worship," a term translated from the Government order. It is explained that sacrifices should hereafter be offered to the spirits of Xuan Chuanniu and Yuch Wu-Mu, who rendered great services and showed exemplary loyalty to their sovereigns in past eras. The Bureau of Rites is ordered to prepare a suitable form of sacrifice and worship for these and other Generals and statesmen who served their country well, both of the Empire and the "Ming Huo," the Republic. The object is plainly stated to be the encouragement of the people to martial spirit and the development of patriotism and loyalty in the army.

TEXAS COW HAS WOODEN LEG

Has Been Wearing the Artificial Limb for Over Two Years.

Dallas, Texas.—Ever see a wooden legged cow? There is one in Dallas. The cow is the property of J. M. Carroll, who is responsible for the cow's ability to walk about on a wooden leg. She had been using the artificial limb for more than two years.

Mrs. Cow lost her leg because she got mixed up with a tether rope. The rope became twisted about the limb. Mrs. Bovine struggled to get loose, and as a result so cut the flesh about the leg that amputation was necessary.

Then Carroll supplied the artificial limb. With a couple of strips of copper bound to a wooden stilt about four inches long, and with the copper socket lined with soft leather, the job was accomplished. The stump of the leg was inserted into the copper socket of the artificial limb. Proper bindings were applied, and Bossy has been living happily ever since.

WOMEN'S WOES.

Greencastle Women Are Finding Relief at Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and tread and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Keeping the kidneys well has spared thousands of women much misery. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that is endorsed by people you know.

CAVE DISCOVERY REVIVES OLD TALES

MOONSHINE REGION STIRRED BY DREAM OF GOLD.

Finding of Human Bones Suggests that Hermit-Woodsman May Have Been Murdered for Treasure.

Pleasant, Ky.—This town is all excitement today over the finding of a cave containing a pile of human bones and the name "Frank Keras" chiseled out with some rough instrument on the side of the cave. The discoverer is Homer Woods.

Keras was a recluse who lived somewhere on Wolfe Creek, fifty or sixty years ago. Bill King, an old-time hunter, was the only one whom he ever made a real confidant, Keras disappeared and no one ever knew where he went, but at that time it was thought he had gone to visit relatives, as he had told that he had a brother living in Philadelphia, Pa. King made a vigorous search for him, even made an alleged trip to Philadelphia, but when he returned he said he could find neither Keras or his relatives. King then told friends that during a sick spell Keras had told him that he had a large sum of money and even went as far as to show him a large sack of groundhog hide filled to overflowing with gold nuggets and coins.

King, after suffering a severe attack of typhoid fever, was deranged and would talk of nothing but gold all day and would often scream out during his sleep, "Look at the gold!" At last after suffering this way for several months he died, without revealing the location of the cave.

As time passed these events were forgotten and when Woods told of his discovery here this morning only Jas. McInis could remember Keras and his supposed wealth.

Woods found the cave when his dog chased a mink into the opening some sixty feet above the ground between two huge rocks, which they entered by means of a small ledge running the entire length of the cliff from a point on the hill. After the dog chased the mink into the opening he would not return over the perilous path he traveled in going, and Woods, thinking perhaps the dog had chased a wildcat into the opening, procured a ladder and a flashlight to rescue the dog and set a trap for the animal.

After ascending the cliff he was amazed to see part of a rusty door hinge lying on the ground nearby. Thinking perhaps he had stumbled into a place formerly used by "moonshiners," who used to use every available place to hide their whisky in the mountains, he entered only to be badly scared by an unearthly shriek from an owl. A large mink raced by him as he proceeded further into the cave.

While making an effort to fight off the bats which seemed to be there in countless numbers he looked down and saw the pile of bones which were evidently those of a former human being. Further investigation revealed the inscription on the side of the cave which read, "Frank Keras, 1852."

Woods is organizing a party to explore the cave in an effort to see if some of the gold cannot be found. Over one hundred men have already volunteered their service.

The cave is situated high up on the mountain and is made by a crack in the rock some four or five feet wide. It is not known how far-reaching it is, as Woods only proceeded about seventy yards from the mouth and he says it dips considerably. McInis said in an interview recently:

"I can remember Bill King and Frank Keras as well as if I had seen them yesterday. Keras was living somewhere in the woods on Wolfe Creek when my father moved here from Virginia in 1842. He was a hermit and it was not often any one ever saw him. Bill King, an old-time hunter was his only friend. Since the finding of the bones by Woods I am confident he was murdered by King for his gold and that King's supposed trip to Philadelphia was all a bluff."

"Once when I met Keras in the woods his only clothing was made from the hides of animals he had killed. He confided to me that he had a brother, Richard, living at Philadelphia and said the reason he was in the Kentucky hills was because his father had banished him from home when he was a small boy, following some trouble with his stepmother. Everyone thought he made his gold by 'moonshining.' Because he could never be caught at it, some ventured to say that he undoubtedly knew of a gold mine."

Cat Steals Money for Bed

Bayonne, N. J.—The $50 in small bills which Patrick J. Cavanaugh had long concealed in a small box under the bed in his home at Avenue A and First street disappeared a few days ago and he was worried. He was about to call in the police when he found the family cat with a litter of kittens. She had borrowed the money to make a comfortable bed for her little ones.

Splendid for Rheumatism.
"I think Chamberlain's Liniment is just splendid for rheumatism," writes Mrs. Dunburgh, Eldridge, N. Y. "It has been used by myself and other members of my family time and time again during the past six years and has always given the best of satisfaction." The quick relief from pain which Chamberlain's Liniment affords is alone worth many times the cost. Obtainable everywhere.

The Stories of Famous Novels

By Albert Payson Terhune

"THE LADY OR THE TIGER?"

By Frank Stockton

In a southern country long ago dwelt a semi-barbaric king who had original ideas of his own on the subject of administering justice, ideas worthy of "The Mikado."

This semi-barbaric king had one daughter. She was young and beautiful, and she inherited not a little of her father's proud, fiery spirit.

But pride went to the wall when the Princess met a youth far below her in rank, who had the daring to fall madly in love with her. She found herself, all at once, as completely in love as was he.

For a space the royal girl and her lowly lover kept their secret. Theirs was a hopeless love. Both knew well enough that the king would never consent to their marriage.

They knew, too, that a swift and terrible death would probably be the lover's reward should their love become known. For semi-barbaric kings—outside of fairy tales—do not encourage romances between their daughters and poor young men of lesser birth.

Thus, without hope, yet without fear and with an all-consuming fire, the love affair continued. And in due time came the inevitable exposure. The king learned of his only daughter's folly in giving her heart where he would not let her give her hand.

Swift on the heels of discovery came retribution. The Princess was allowed to go unpunished. But the lover was cast into a dungeon while an adequate fate was prepared for him.

The Princess pleaded for her sweetheart's life. So did others who were fond of the doomed man. And here the monarch resolved on one of his eccentric fancies of "justice"—justice of a sort to make Indian tortures seem tame.

He announced that the prisoner should have an even chance for life. And he summoned the court and the populace to witness that "chance."

Out from his dungeon the lover was led and into the arena of a crowded amphitheatre. There two closed doors in the arena wall were shown to him. Behind one of these doors, he was told, crouched a man-eating tiger, ready to spring out upon him and tear him to shreds.

Behind the other door, the king told him, stood a lady—young, rich and beautiful—eager to step forth and become his bride.

Should he open one door he would be slain by the tiger. Should he open the other door he would find love, wealth, happiness. But he did not know which door concealed the lady and which the tiger. Nor could he know until he should open one or the other portal.

Hesitating, he raised his eyes. And he encountered the gaze of the Princess, who sat at her father's side on the royal dais. She knew which door masked the lady and behind which door the hungry tiger crouched snarling.

Should her lover open one door he would be forever snatched from the Princess by swift death. Should he open the other he would be equally lost to her, as the husband of another woman—a woman in whose love he would perhaps forget his former adoration for herself.

As the prisoner in the arena stared questioningly up to her the Princess nodded almost imperceptibly toward one of the two doors. He understood. That was the door she wished him to open.

Hesitating no longer, he walked to the door the Princess had indicated. And he threw it wide.

Which came forth to meet him? The lady or the tiger?

FRANCIS RICHARD STOCKTON was an engraver and journalist and became assistant editor of ST. NICHOLAS. He first attracted notice by his stories for children, but is best known as the author of RUDDER GRANGE, which appeared in 1879.

Of his later works the most famous are "THE LADY OR THE TIGER?" "THE DUSANTES," "THE SQUIRREL INN," "POMONA'S TRAVELS," "MRS. CLIFF'S YACHT," "THE GREAT STONE OF SARDIS CITY," etc.

(Note—"The Lady or the Tiger?" was originally published as a short story in a magazine and was later brought out in book form. Stockton sent the story in vain from one editor to another before he could get it accepted. As soon as it appeared in print it caused an almost unparalleled sensation, a sensation that reacted on its author. "I never came so near starving," said Stockton half jokingly, "as during the two years that followed its publication. Nearly every editor to whom I sent a story sent it back with the request that I write him something as good as "The Lady or the Tiger?"

KEEP WHITE ANT FROM TIMBER

Much Serious Damage Done by Termites in Large Cities of North and Throughout the Southern States May Be Avoided by Thorough Treatment.

The ravages of the white ant, which because of its insidious work in timber and wood structures is one of the most destructive insects of North America, can be limited by comparatively simple measures, according to the entomologists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This pest, known scientifically as the termites, attacks bridge timbers, wells, silos, telegraph poles, bean poles, mine props, fence posts and railroad ties, and the sudden crumbling of wharves, caving in of mines and the settling in of floors are sometimes directly due to its hidden borings. Such large cities as New York, Cleveland, St. Louis and Washington have known serious depredations, and damage occasionally occurs as far north as Massachusetts and Michigan. Throughout the southern states the termites' ravages are even more general.

Some of the recommendations of the Department's entomologists for dealing with this pest are as follows:

Forest products in contact with the ground should be impregnated with coal-tar creosote, which is a permanent preventive against attack by our native termites. Coal-tar creosote has many properties which would recommend its use in this respect, for it is also a fungicide, and, being insoluble in water, will not leach out in wet locations. These requirements furnish objections to many chemicals that otherwise are very effective insecticides.

The various methods of superficially treating timber, as by charring, by brushing or by dipping with various chemical preservatives, among which are creosotes, carbolicums, etc., have proven to be temporarily effective in preventing attack if the work is thoroughly done. If not thoroughly done termites enter through the untreated or superficially treated portions, especially through weathering checks and knots. Where the bases of poles, mine props, etc., are left untreated termites enter the timber from below, and avoiding treated portions come up through the interior. Charred timber is effective against termite attack for a period less than a year, although it is not seriously damaged at the end of one year. It will readily be seen that neither brushing nor spraying the exterior after placement, as is sometimes practiced, is effective in keeping out termites, since the portion that sets in the ground could not be treated, and it is usually at this point that termite attack occurs.

Before treating timber with chemical preservatives, especially where the brush method is employed, it is essential that the timber be thoroughly seasoned, otherwise penetration by the preservatives will be retarded.

Many patented wood preservatives, advertised as effective against wood borers, often merely contain simple preservatives, as for instance linseed oil, to which a slight odor of oil of citronella has been imparted, or contain simple poisons. For timber to be set in the ground, brush coatings with linseed oil are not effective against termites.

Impregnation with chlorinated naphthalene may prove effective against termites, as a preservative for woodwork in interior finish, where it is important that the preservatives should not "sweat" out or stain the wood. Treated wood blocks buried in the ground with termite-infested logs were not attacked after a test of nearly six months. Impregnation with paraffin wax was not effective in the Bureau of Entomology's experiments. If the wood is not in contact with the ground impregnation treatments with bichloride of mercury and zinc chloride are effective. The mercury and zinc in this form are both soluble in water.

How Ice Should Be Stored for Country Use

Ice is a very perishable commodity, and therefore certain important principles must be considered in the construction of a place to store it. Investigators of the department consider that there are four important things to be considered in order to keep ice well. These are as follows:

1. The ice must have a minimum of surface exposed to the air or to the packing material. This is most easily accomplished by piling the ice in the form of a cube. A mass of ice 12 by 12 feet exposes less surface than the same tonnage piled in any form less airy than that of a cube or of a globe.

2. The keeping of good ice depends upon the completeness of its insulation, whereby it is protected from external influences, such as heat and air.

3. Drainage is important because of the lack of it interferes with the insulation.
4. The ice itself must be packed so as to prevent as completely as possible the circulation of air through the mass. The more nearly the mass of ice approaches that of a solid cube, both in shape and texture, the easier, with good drainage and insulation, will be the keeping problem. The keeping of ice, then, depends upon the shape of the mass, its insulation, its drainage and its solidity.

During the past four years there has been a steady advance in price of each bus of meat animals and milk cows.

Well Kept

"Don't you think books are nice for children?" asked Mrs. Van Oppen of Buzzert.

"Indeed, I do," agreed Buzzert. "Children keep their books so nice as a usual thing," went on Mrs. Van Oppen. "Their little toys are soon gone, but their books they keep from year to year, and they are a growing pleasure all the time."

"That's a fact," agreed Buzzert, holding forth his saucer for more blanc mangle. "I always broke my toys first thing, but my books always lasted six months or a year. I had one book that lasted several years. It was just as neat and clean at the end of four years as it was at the beginning."

"That book is somewhere today—goodness knows where, but the pages are still clean. It is entitled 'Harry Bradner's Crusade.' It is illustrated, I remember."

"How well I remember one spirited picture of some children burying a dead bird! Also a picture of a boy carrying a baseball bat. I tried hard to read that book, but the seventh page was so far as I ever got when I started at the beginning. I don't see how the author ever got to the end of that book. The author was a good man, I am sure. None but pious and good thoughts ever fitted through his noble mind. The author may have been a lady, but I don't remember as to that."

"After finding the beginning such heavy going I sort of skipped around. I tried to see where the bat carrying incident came in, but never succeeded. I read two pages on each side of the picture, and then went back and read four pages on each side of the picture, but there wasn't a thing about a boy ever having anything to do with baseball bats. There was nothing but noble thoughts."

"I think the artist who illustrated that book never read the story, or else he just put that picture in for a sort of bait."

"No other author ever got together such a lot of stuff calculated to cause perpetual cleanness of the book. And it was the prettiest book outside that I ever saw!"

"Yes," responded Mrs. Van Oppen, who had not been listening, "books are so nice for children."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Not a great while ago the authorities were obliged to enforce the law regarding the skating on sidewalks. Since then a great many people have forgotten about the law and are now violating the same by skating. In the first place skating on the walks is a nuisance by the noise made. Second it is very dangerous to other people. Third, it is ruinous to the sidewalk. Rolling over the lines in walks soon begins to make the cement crumble and break and then a new walk is demanded, and these walks are too expensive to be put down very often. The law is just as strict in regard to skating on sidewalks as to any other law, and no doubt the authorities will enforce the same. A CITIZEN.

The Human Body a Working Machine

Man of today is as near a machine as he probably ever can become, and still exist. To keep him in perfect "running order" he has to be treated as such. Now, if your watch or auto had slipped a cog, would you apply oil or dope to adjust its parts?

As With Auto and Watch.

So With the Human Body.

It gets out of running order through the process of life, and needs repairing. No defective machine can turn out good work. Every day that an "unclean" or out-of-gear watch, auto, or any other machine is compelled to run, wears seriously its vital parts and saps its vitality. It has been abundantly demonstrated in this community that health depends upon the human machine being kept in good mechanical order. Adjustment of the human body is the particular and special work of the

Spaunhurst Osteopathic Physicians

That they are expert body machinists, know what to do and how to correctly fix what is mechanically wrong with the body structure is evidenced by kindly expressions of those who have given their treatment a fair trial. All that is needed to demonstrate this is unprejudiced inquiry. What they have done for others they can do for you if you do not put off till too late. They have earned and are entitled to the liberal patronage accorded them.

The Treatment is not Harsh nor Painful

They are physicians of learning and experience, having received their training consisting of three years in osteopathy at the celebrated American School of Kirksville, Mo. They give a little more satisfaction than is expected and make good every promise. They do not claim to perform miracles. Aid nature to health—that's all. Go and see. It is the duty of sick people to investigate the cures coming from osteopathic treatment.

This is the week to hustle for New Daily Subscriptions

This is the week for the candidates for The Herald's Great California Tour offer to hustle for new subscriptions to The Daily Herald. For the candidate who secured the most votes from new subscriptions to The Herald during the week will be given a 100 vote bonus offered this week.

The candidates are now getting very busy. The bonus offered last week got the candidates enthused and they now are beating the bushes for new subscriptions and for renewals.

Miss Adele Wilson, the Roachdale candidate, now leads the candidates with a total of almost 1100 votes. She will increase her vote materially this week, too, for her friends in north Putnam are getting the spirit—they want to see her make an early finish.

Miss Hazel Branham of Greencastle, the second candidate, will greatly increase her vote this week if she carries out her plans. In fact each candidate intends making much progress before next Monday night, when the bonus offer closes. There is no doubt but that this will be the biggest week, from the standpoint of vote getting, since the contest began.

There is a little change in the vote standing today. Miss Wilson has increased her standing slightly. But wait until next Monday—there will be a big change and someone will get the 100 vote bonus.

The vote standing today is as follows:

Barnum and has made a very favorable impression on all audiences which have heard it. Chapel begins at 10:20 o'clock. Visitors are cordially invited to attend the exercises.

J. H. Job, of near Reelsville, was in Greencastle this morning. Mr. Job was severely injured Monday when he was thrown forward when a double tree to the plow which he was driving broke, was here to have his wound attended to. Mr. Job's chin was badly cut and mashed when he was thrown against the end of the plow beam. The injury, although painful, is responding readily to treatment.

After having been out since 5 o'clock last evening the jury in the case of Doan against the Big Four Railroad, asking damages of $4,000 returned a verdict early this afternoon giving Mr. Doan damages of $250. The suit grew out of the changing of the right-of-way through the Doan farm in Hendricks county. The case had been in court for eight years, a former verdict of $1,000 for Mr. Doan being reversed by the appellate court.

The sewer ditching machine has been moved from the southeast part of the city to east Washington street. Practically all the work of the Terre Haute contractors has been completed. The machine has been making rapid progress during the past several weeks and most of the excavating has been finished. It started work Monday afternoon near the corner of Washington and Locust street and will excavate from there to the corner of Washington and Vine streets. A portion of the machinery used here in installing the sewer has been removed from the city and the contractors expect to have the entire job completed in a few weeks, should the weather permit.

STORY TELLING HOUR FOR GREENCASTLE CHILDREN.

Beginning next Saturday, Greencastle children between the ages of four and seven will be entertained at what has been designated as "story telling hours." The new form of entertainment for the youngsters will be conducted by representatives of the Young Women's Christian Association of DePauw university. The meetings will be held in the assembly room at the city library.

The idea of conducting story telling classes for small children is an innovation here although they are conducted in many cities by the Y. W. C. A. It is said that the children become greatly enthused over the meetings and that parents also are enthusiastic over the benefits derived from them. The young ladies present stories to the children that are at the same time interesting and instructive.

It is planned to make the story telling hours something permanent here if the children take up with the idea as they have at other places and if parents are interested enough to encourage them to attend. All the meetings will be held in the library building on Saturday afternoon at the hour named.

"THE BLACK BOX" LOST: EXPRESS CO. IS BLAMED

The mystery of "The Black Box," admitted to be the most mystifying serial and photoplay story of modern times, has deepened. For just as the first episode of the story was to be shown on the opera house moving picture screen, the films disappeared. And today the company which has charge of the films is hunting for it.

The films were to have been shipped to Greencastle by express from Anderson Monday so as to arrive here in time for the show Monday night. But they failed to reach Greencastle and the express company agents say they went to Chicago instead of Greencastle. The new mystery will be cleared up by next Friday night, however, when the first episodes of the serial will be shown on the Opera House Moving Picture screen. The second episode will be shown on the following Monday night.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

The human body is a vitalized machine which is far more complex and more delicate than any man made machine. Hence, its proper adjustment should be entrusted only to those skilled in the minutest details of the body structure.

The human body contains the machinery to make whatever is needed to run the human machine without friction or pain when all the parts are correctly adjusted and the wreckage which accumulates in the process of life is cleared away by an expert machinist, the competent osteopath.

It is deplorable that so many are spending money and energy dallying with symptoms and giving no attention to the cause of disease. Humanity can not escape its miseries until the proper remedy is applied at the root of the disease.

When a cinder gets into your eye, you can poultice it and quell the inflammation, but the cinder will bring it back. Lift up the lid and remove the cause—the cinder—and the trouble will remedy itself. Just so, back of most diseases are structural defects and it is the work of the Spauldust Osteopaths to remove the cause of the disturbance and thus control function by scientific adjustments which are possible only to an efficient anatomist and physiologist with trained hands and educated touch.

Treatment is fraught with danger in the hands of ignorant pretenders. Over Lyric theater. Lady attendant.
